

KAMCHATKA SURF EXPLORATION

Project description:

What is the first image that comes into your head when you think “Surf trip”? is it Bali’s beautiful nature and perfect waves? or Hawaii’s world famous breaks? I know, it’s also nice, warm and paradise like in the last mentioned. But what if you get tired of that? What if every time you go, another thousand people had the same thought as you did and showed up for their holidays?

The motive of this trip is to show nature and beauty in other, less touched areas of the world, where both natural resources and amazing waves come together under the price of a more adventurous and less luxurious trip to the far East of the insanely large country of Russia, because no one made a rule that says that paradise has to be warm. That’s why we think it is interesting that the main characters in the trip are a Dominican and a Costa Rican surfer that are not afraid of throwing themselves into the Russian wilderness and cold waters to get that uncrowded wave that we all dream of surfing.

Me and my crew will arrive at Moscow for a day to meet with some friends that might be joining us on the trip, again, they might be! After that we will take a long flight to the other end of the world where we will really begin our journey. Through out the entire trip we will be documenting both with photo and film every single interesting moment that we get exposed to and we will forge a nicely edited video of our experience in the trip followed by a vast campaign of stories that we will write for different magazines in Europe, USA and Latin America.

Who is coming:

The crew put together for the trip is:

Jesus Carceller:

Jesus is a professional Surf photographer and video enthusiast from Spain, he is a very funny and adventurous person and is very driven to new, more daring ideas. Jesus is also a life long fisherman since he was raised by fishing enthusiast. He is extra excited about the trip because Kamchatka is known around the world for being the best place for Trout and river Salmon fishing.

Jesus's work:

Josymar Fuentes:

Apart from having the same main sponsor, Josymar and I share the same passion for adventure and finding unique place to preform our amazing sport, he is a very talented and hard working young man and a very comfortable and fun person to travel with.

Josymar in action:

Victor Rosario:

I'm a very happy father of two boys with a tendency to always follow what my heart wants to do, I believe in living your life to the fullest and with no regrets or hold backs since you are what your children look upon. I really want my kids to have fun stories to grow up with and to sometime tell their kids about. I have a big passion for what I do and I love everything it offers on the way, that's why trips like this are so important to me, I learn and become a better person by living humbling experiences like I'm hoping this one to be and I would love to share that experience with everyone.

Me at play:

Photo: J. Carceller

Why Kamchatka:

The Kamchatka peninsula has so much landscape and coast to offer and it is only imaginable the amount of waves that there might be on that area, it is facing straight to the Pacific Ocean so there are a lot of possibilities when it comes to finding some world class waves. It only has been explored once on an international scale and it was in 2004 with the Rip Curl Search that I first heard about it, ever since I've wanted to have a chance to experience it myself. Other than that, there are so many other things that catch my attention. I want to experience the local culture and see with my own eyes the wild life it shelters, I've never seen a bear personally since I come from a place where there aren't any, so that would be a very interesting thing for me.

2004 Rip Curl trip:

Goal:

We want to show everyone that you “can” surf anywhere in the world and that you might be able to find new amazing surf destinations in the most un-thought places of the planet, because no one ever thought there were waves in Russia.

Victor Rosario
victor@diversedynamics.com
+46723201069